

CRMJ 205C : Police Administration and Operations

Covers the principles of police organization, administration, community policing, and the selection, training, promotion, and socialization of officers. It deals with the conflicting roles that the police and individual officers face in today's society as part of the justice system. It also examines issues involving the influence of research, police deviance, minorities, the use of force, and the general hazards of police work.

Credits 3

Lab/Practicum/Clinical Hours 0

Lecture Hours 3